Oppg. 1

Read the text. Click on the correct person.

Laila is standing in the check-in queue. She has a small suitcase and a handbag. She's holding a print out of her ticket.
Read the text. Click on the correct person or animal.

This animal looks very much like a cat but lives in the forest and mountains and hunts smaller animals. It has a short tail, and in the museum it has been placed in front of the walrus and next to the fox. Click on the correct animal.
Read the text. Click on the correct item or person.

Simon is very interested in Viking shields. He is admiring the museum's shield display on the wall. He can't decide which one he likes the best. Click on Simon.
Read the text. Click on the correct item.

Ayana is trying to sneak into her brother's room without being noticed. She really wants to play with his toy aeroplane. She looks under the bed and the desk, but can't find it. Finally she sees it hanging from the ceiling. She climbs onto the bed and grabs it. Click on what she wants to play with.
Read the text. Click on the correct picture.

This flag is blue and it has red and white crosses in the top corner. It has some red stars with white borders.
Read the text. Click on the correct picture.

This dinosaur has longer hind legs than forelegs. It has a thick tail and is covered with colourful stripes.
Read the text. Click on the correct picture.

Sam is eating one of his favourite dinners today. He thinks it's really fun to eat this messy meal because it looks like a plate of worms!
According to ancient Greek mythology, Atlas joined the Titans in a war against the gods, which they lost. As punishment, the gods made him hold up the sky forever. Some people mistakenly believe that his punishment was to hold up the Earth, and this is often seen in statues and pictures.
Read the text. Click on the correct picture.

On the edge of our town, there is a large factory. Behind it is a site where many factory workers live in huts and caravans. In summer, a lot of campers pitch their tents there as well. According to the rules, residents must keep their spaces clean and the property in good repair. Click on the place where the rules are being broken.
Read the text. Click and drag.

The towel rack is on the wall between the sink and the shower. Put the item in the correct place.
Kevin has taken his children out for dinner. He is very hungry and has ordered a plate of spaghetti. He loves pasta and tomato sauce. Put Kevin's order in front of him on the table.
Read the text. Click and drag.

There is an open market in the town square and it's always very busy. At the moment, a teenager is standing between the meat stall and the old telephone booth. He is asking people to buy magazines. There is also a lady cycling across the square, and a break dancer is performing. Put the seller in the correct place.
Set the clock to the correct time.

Laura has a plan for the afternoon. School finishes at two o'clock, and she has a football match at three. Her grandmother has invited her for dinner at half past five. In the evening she plans to watch her favourite TV program, The WW, which starts at eight.

Set the clock to the time when Laura has a game.
Set the clock to the correct time.

Stanley is on holiday with his family in Malaga, and they fly home on Sunday. The bus will pick them up at the hotel at quarter past four in the morning. Their flight departs three hours later and they arrive home at twenty to three in the afternoon.

Set the clock to the time when Stanley will be leaving the hotel.
Look at the picture. Click on the correct text.

- Sam's mother has a very special hat. It is a very bright colour and has an unusual shape. There is a cloth flower on the side.
- Mia has a special hat that she wears in the mountains. It has a fur lining and protection for her ears, so she is really warm.
- Felix loves western movies. His favourite hat has a wide brim that turns up on the sides. It is decorated with a dark leather band.
- Leah's grandmother's hat is very old. It looks like a round box, but the top has a dent around the edge. The colour is unusual too.
This weather phenomenon occurs when the sun shines through falling rain, and it becomes visible as an arc of colours in the sky.

This phenomenon occurs about every 18 days. When this occurs, natural satellites orbiting Earth is completely lit up by the sun. It appears at its biggest and brightest.

This natural phenomenon occurs during an electric storm. It is a sudden explosion of light and sound, accompanied by a loud noise.

This phenomenon occurs when a small object or fragments of rock from space enter Earth's atmosphere. The object will start to glow and leaves a long trail behind it.

Look at the picture. Click on the correct text.
Read the sentence. Click on the correct text.

Click on the text that describes a new type of animal.

- Scientists have managed to cross a zebra and a donkey. The resulting zonkey is light brown with some black stripes, particularly on its legs.
- The average cloud is estimated to weigh almost 100 thousand kilos. In contrast, it is estimated that a storm cloud may weigh 48 million kilos.
- It is possible to attach a number of branches from different trees onto a single stem. This makes it possible for one tree to produce 40 different kinds of fruit.
- One day, a 3-year-old boy was playing with a metal detector. He found a 16th century gold pendant that has an estimated value of four million dollars.

Forrige  1  14  16  17  18  19  20  21  22  39  Neste
Read the sentence. Click on the correct text.

Click on the text about a person who gets books as presents.

- Amy plans to be a vet when she grows up. She loves to read books about animals, both fiction and non-fiction. Every Christmas, her grandfather gives her one of the latest books about horses. She likes those best of all.
- Cliff has a whole shelf of books about mechanics. He has learned how things like car engines and clocks work. His grandmother gave him a kit to build an intruder alarm, so no one can enter his room undetected. It's amazing!
- Zoe loves clothes, and she reads all the latest fashion magazines. She also has a collection of books on the history of fashion and famous designers. She has noticed that changes are more dramatic and rapid nowadays.
- Grog isn't a great reader, but he likes mysteries. He got hooked when he found his parents' old Nancy Drew books. His favourites are those with child heroes, like Sarahfina and Alex Rider. He's even read the entire Amulet series.
Read the text. Click on the correct word.

I like hot soup on cold days. My favourite is chicken noodle soup, and my mum makes the best. I put my nose to the bowl and inhale the delicious aroma. I love that smell. I can almost taste it!
Read the text. Click on the correct word.

I like hot soup on cold days. My favourite is chicken noodle soup, and my mum [ ] the best. I put my nose [ ] the bowl and inhale the delicious aroma. I love that smell. I wish I had some in front of me. I can almost taste it!
Dear Grandma,

I love San Francisco. We have been to Chinatown first day, we went to Fisherman's Wharf, and I liked it. We crossed the Golden Gate Bridge. The view was amazing. Tomorrow, we will take an old cable car. It is very expensive, but there have been some fog too. I hope we can go to Stinson Beach one day, anyway.

Hugs and kisses,

Polly
Dear Grandma,

I love San Francisco! We have been to Chinatown crossed the Golden Gate Bridge. The first day, we went to Fisherman’s Wharf, and I liked it a lot. Tomorrow, we will take an old cable car that climbs up a steep hill. I can’t wait to try them. Almost every day is sunny, but there has been some fog too! I hope we can go to the coast one day, anyway.

Hugs and kisses,
Polly
Dear Grandma,

I love San Francisco! We have been to Chinatown ___ crossed the Golden Gate Bridge. The first day, we went to Fisherman's Wharf, and I liked it a lot. Tomorrow, we will take an old cable car that climbs up a steep hill. I can't wait to try ______! Almost every day is sunny, but there have been some fog too! I hope we can go to Stinson Beach one day, anyway.

Hugs and kisses,

Polly
Read the text. Click on the correct answer.

Jessica and Ruth were outside playing when they saw the sky turn dark as thick clouds rolled in. Large raindrops began to fall, so they ran for cover. They looked funny when they walked into the house. They were drenched!

What does the word “drenched” mean in this text?
- Very muddy
- Quite dry
- Quite sticky
- Very wet
Read the text. Click on the correct answer.

Dear Diary,

Today, we welcomed a new girl in class. Her name is Ella and she comes from New Zealand. She is tall with long curly black hair and freckles on her nose. She doesn't speak Norwegian; only English. I explained that I speak two languages since my mother is from England and my father is from Norway. I helped Ella find her way around school and introduced her to my friends at lunchtime. She has a cat, but really wants to get a dog. She enjoys horses just like I do! I think we are going to be good friends!

Hugs,

Ariel

What do Ella and Ariel have in common?

- They both like cats.
- They both speak English.
- They both have curly hair.
- They are both dog owners.
Read the text. Click on the correct answer.

It was the summer holidays, and Owen was finally going fishing with his grandad. He had been looking forward to it for weeks! They had taken their fishing rods and some live bait, and headed for the lake near Grandad's house. Owen had been fishing before, but not with his new rod. Grandad praised him for casting perfectly, and they were both standing by the side of the lake, waiting for the fish to bite. As long as he could hang out with his Grandad, Owen didn't actually care whether or not he caught any fish – this was just fantastic!

What would be the best title for this text?

- Visit from Grandad
- Deep-sea fishing
- Fishing with Grandad
- Summer holiday
Read the text. Click on the correct answer.

Samuel always walked to school, meeting his best friends, Oscar and Benjamin, in front of the supermarket on his way. This morning, his feet felt kind of funny, but he didn't really know why. He was busy thinking about the football match they were playing later in the day – he was not sure he could remember what his coach had taught him.

After about five minutes, he saw his friends waving at him. As he got closer, he saw them laughing and pointing at his feet. He looked down and saw what he had put on this morning: a trainer on his left foot, and a hiking boot on his right. No wonder his feet had felt so strange!

Why were Oscar and Benjamin laughing?

- Samuel tripped over his shoes.
- Samuel was telling a funny joke.
- Samuel was dressed strangely.
- Samuel looked so serious.
Read the text. Click on the correct answer:

Have you ever read the book The Story of the Little Mole Who Knew it was None of his Business? It is a funny children’s book written by Werner Holzwarth in 1989. Wolf Erlbruch is the illustrator.

The book is about a little mole who looks out of his hole one morning, and suddenly poop lands on his head! The mole becomes angry, and talks to different animals, trying to find out who did it.

The book was originally written in German, but has been translated into 33 different languages, including Norwegian. It is still extremely popular both among children and adults, and over three million copies have been sold!

What is true about the mole, according to the text?

- He stays in his hole all day.
- He wants to find out the truth.
- He is angry and will not speak to anyone.
- He doesn’t care about the poop on his head.
QUESTION 1/5

Read the text. Click on the correct answer.

Long ago, when the world was young, bears had long, fluffy tails just like foxes. One day in the winter, when the lakes were frozen, Bear met Fox coming out of the woods from a nearby farm. Fox was carrying a huge pile of fish he had stolen from the farmer. "You've got a lot of fish there, Fox. How did you get them?" Fox could tell that Bear was hungry, and decided to play a trick on him.

"I was fishing and caught them myself," said Fox. Bear loved fish but had only eaten fish that others had given him. Bear didn't know how to fish, but he knew you needed something to fish with. "But how did you catch the fish? You don't have anything to fish with," observed Bear. "I used my tail," answered Fox. "It's the best way to catch fish. You cut a hole in the ice and put your tail in the water. You wiggle it around so that the fish see it. It gets cold, but soon the fish will start to bite. When you can stand the pain no longer, pull your tail out. You'll have lots of fish!" Bear was sceptical, but he really wanted fish. He was so proud of his long, bushy tail and Fox knew it.

So Bear cut a hole in the ice, lowered his tail into it and waited. He wiggled his tail around from time to time to attract the fish. The pain in his tail was unbearable, but Bear just continued to think of all the fish he would soon get. When he felt it had been long enough, Bear tried to stand up, but his tail had frozen into the ice. "Pull harder!" instructed Fox. Bear pulled and pulled with all his might and tore off his tail. "My beautiful tail!" cried Bear as Fox, the trickster, ran away laughing. So if you hear a bear groaning, maybe he is remembering his beautiful, long tail.
QUESTION 2/5

Read the text. Click on the correct answer.

Long ago, when the world was young, bears had long, fluffy tails just like foxes. One day in the winter, when the lakes were frozen, Bear met Fox coming out of the woods from a nearby farm. Fox was carrying a huge pile of fish he had stolen from the farmer. "You've got a lot of fish there, Fox. How did you get them?" Fox could tell that Bear was hungry, and decided to play a trick on him.

"I was fishing and caught them myself", said Fox. Bear loved fish but had only eaten fish that others had given him. Bear didn't know how to fish, but he knew you needed something to fish with. "But how did you catch the fish? You don't have anything to fish with", observed Bear. "I used my tail", answered Fox. "It's the best way to catch fish. You cut a hole in the ice and put your tail in the water. You wiggle it around so that the fish see it. It gets cold, but soon the fish will start to bite. When you can stand the pain no longer, pull your tail out. You'll have lots of fish!" Bear was sceptical, but he really wanted fish. He was so proud of his long, bushy tail, and Fox knew it.

So Bear cut a hole in the ice, lowered his tail into it and waited. He wiggled his tail around from time to time to attract the fish. The pain in his tail was unbearable, but Bear just continued to think of all the fish he would soon get. When he felt it had been long enough, Bear tried to stand up, but his tail had frozen into the ice! "Pull harder", instructed Fox. Bear pulled and pulled with all his might and tore off his tail. "My beautiful tail" cried Bear as Fox, the trickster, ran away laughing. So if you hear a bear groaning, maybe he is remembering his beautiful, long tail.

Where does Bear lose his tail?

- On a frozen lake
- In the woods
- At a local farm
- In a cave
QUESTION 3/5

Read the text. Click on the correct answer.

Long ago, when the world was young, bears had long, fluffy tails just like foxes. One day in the winter, when the lakes were frozen, Bear met Fox coming out of the woods from a nearby farm. Fox was carrying a huge pile of fish he had stolen from the farmer. “You’ve got a lot of fish there, Fox. How did you get them?” Fox could tell that Bear was hungry, and decided to play a trick on him.

“I was fishing and caught them myself”, said Fox. Bear loved fish but had only eaten fish that others had given him. Bear didn’t know how to fish, but he knew you needed something to fish with. “But how did you catch the fish? You don’t have anything to fish with”, observed Bear. “I used my tail”, answered Fox. “It’s the best way to catch fish. You cut a hole in the ice and put your tail in the water. You wiggle it around so that the fish see it. It gets cold, but soon the fish will start to bite. When you can stand the pain no longer, pull your tail out. You’ll have lots of fish!” Bear was sceptical, but he really wanted fish. He was so proud of his long, bushy tail, and Fox knew it.

So Bear cut a hole in the ice, lowered his tail into it and waited. He wiggled his tail around from time to time to attract the fish. The pain in his tail was unbearable, but Bear just continued to think of all the fish he would soon get. When he felt it had been long enough, Bear tried to stand up but his tail had frozen into the ice! “Pull harder”, instructed Fox. Bear pulled and pulled with all his might and tore off his tail! “My beautiful tail!” cried Bear as Fox, the trickster, ran away laughing. So if you hear a bear groaning, maybe he is remembering his beautiful, long tail.
QUESTION 4/6

Read the text. Click on the correct answer.

Long ago, when the world was young, bears had long, fluffy tails just like foxes. One day in the winter, when the lakes were frozen, Bear met Fox coming out of the woods from a nearby farm. Fox was carrying a huge pile of fish he had stolen from the farmer. “You’ve got a lot of fish there, Fox. How did you get them?” Fox could tell that Bear was hungry, and decided to play a trick on him.

“I was fishing and caught them myself”, said Fox. Bear loved fish but had only eaten fish that others had given him. Bear didn’t know how to fish, but he knew you needed something to fish with. “But how did you catch the fish? You don’t have anything to fish with”, observed Bear. “I used my tail”, answered Fox. “It’s the best way to catch fish. You cut a hole in the ice and put your tail in the water. You wiggle it around so that the fish see it. It gets cold, but soon the fish will start to bite. When you can stand the pain no longer, pull your tail out. You’ll have lots of fish!” Bear was sceptical, but he really wanted fish. He was so proud of his long, bushy tail, and Fox knew it.

So Bear cut a hole in the ice, lowered his tail into it and waited. He wiggled his tail around from time to time to attract the fish. The pain in his tail was unbearable, but Bear just continued to think of all the fish he would soon get. When he felt it had been long enough, Bear tried to stand up, but his tail had frozen into the ice. “Pull harder”, instructed Fox. Bear pulled and pulled with all his might and tore off his tail. “My beautiful tail!” cried Bear as Fox, the trickster, ran away laughing. So if you hear a bear groaning, maybe he is remembering his beautiful, long tail.

What is true about Fox, based on the text?

- He is a good friend
- He attacks Bear
- He loves fishing
- He lies to Bear
QUESTION 5/6

Read the text. Click on the correct answer.

Long ago, when the world was young, bears had long, fluffy tails just like foxes. One day in the winter, when the lakes were frozen, Bear met Fox coming out of the woods from a nearby farm. Fox was carrying a huge pile of fish he had stolen from the farmer. “You’ve got a lot of fish there, Fox. How did you get them?” Fox could tell that Bear was hungry, and decided to play a trick on him.

“I was fishing and caught them myself”, said Fox. Bear loved fish but had only eaten fish that others had given him. Bear didn’t know how to fish, but he knew you needed something to fish with. “But how did you catch the fish? You don’t have anything to fish with”, observed Bear. “I used my tail”, answered Fox. “It’s the best way to catch fish. You cut a hole in the ice and put your tail in the water. You wiggle it around so that the fish see it. It gets cold, but soon the fish will start to bite. When you can stand the pain no longer, pull your tail out. You’ll have lots of fish!” Bear was sceptical, but he really wanted fish. He was so proud of his long, bushy tail, and Fox knew it.

So Bear cut a hole in the ice, lowered his tail into it and waited. He wiggled his tail around from time to time to attract the fish. The pain in his tail was unbearable, but Bear just continued to think of all the fish he would soon get. When he felt it had been long enough, Bear tried to stand up, but his tail had frozen into the ice. “Pull harder”, instructed Fox. Bear pulled and pulled with all his might and tore off his tail. “My beautiful tail!” cried Bear as Fox, the trickster, ran away laughing. So if you hear a bear groaning, maybe he is remembering his beautiful, long tail.
QUESTION 1/6

Read the text. Click on the name of the person who could be speaking.

Who could say: “Painting is really relaxing”?

Benjamin had been eagerly waiting for this half-term holiday. Not only would he have a nice long break from school, but also his mother, Paula, had hinted that she had a wonderful surprise for him. Now Benjamin was two days into his holiday, enjoying his favourite things like drawing, painting, playing cricket and watching television. Suddenly, there was a knock at the door. His holiday “surprise” had finally arrived.

It was his pen of a cousin, Reuben. “Surprise, Benjamin! I’ve come to stay for the holiday,” he said jumping up and down on Benjamin’s bed, and breaking his favourite colouring pens. “I’ll be here until school starts. Isn’t that great?” said Reuben. “Sure, just great,” answered Benjamin, annoyed with the situation. The next few days were a complete disaster.

After a messy dinner where Reuben managed to spill potatoes all over the floor and knock over a jug of milk, Benjamin decided to do some painting. He couldn’t find Reuben, so he spread out all his art supplies and painted a beautiful scene in peace. When he was almost finished, Reuben burst into the room with a bottle of fizzy drink. He tripped on the carpet, spilling the contents of the bottle all over the painting, totally ruining it.

Reuben wanted to follow Benjamin everywhere. If Benjamin tried to leave the house, his mum made him take his cousin with him. One time he thought he could escape for a cricket match, but Paula was expecting a friend, Mrs Banks. For tea. Mum had baked her famous apple crumble cake and she wanted Benjamin to stay for the visit. As usual, Reuben made a mess, embarrassing Benjamin. Benjamin never thought it could be possible to wish for a holiday to be over!
QUESTION 218

Read the text. Click on the name of the person who could be speaking.

Who could say: "I'm an excellent baker"?

Benjamin had been eagerly waiting for this half-term holiday. Not only would he have a nice long break from school, but also his mother, Paula, had hinted that she had a wonderful surprise for him. Now Benjamin was two days into his holiday, enjoying his favourite things like drawing, painting, playing cricket and watching television. Suddenly, there was a knock at the door. His holiday "surprise" had finally arrived.

It was his pan of a cousin, Reuben. "Surprise, Benjamin! I've come to stay for the holiday", he said jumping up and down on Benjamin's bed, and breaking his favourite colouring pencils. "I'll be here until next term! Isn't that great?" said Reuben. "Sure. Just great", answered Benjamin, annoyed with the situation. The next few days were a complete disaster.

After a messy dinner where Reuben managed to spill potatoes all over the floor and knock over a jug of milk, Benjamin decided to do some painting. He couldn't find Reuben, so he spread out all his art supplies and painted a beautiful scene in peace. When he was almost finished, Reuben burst into the room with a bottle of fizzy drink. He tripped on the carpet, spilling the contents of the bottle all over the painting, totally ruining it.

Reuben wanted to follow Benjamin everywhere. If Benjamin tried to leave the house, his mum made him take his cousin with him. One time he thought he could escape for a cricket match, but Paula was expecting a friend, Mr Banks, for tea. Mum had baked her famous apple crumble cake, and she wanted Benjamin to stay for the visit. As usual, Reuben made a mess, embarrassing Benjamin. Benjamin never thought it could be possible to wish for a holiday to be over!

Ditt svar:
QUESTION 3/6

Read the text. Click on the name of the person who could be speaking.

Who could say: “I can’t wait for school to start again”?

Benjamin had been eagerly waiting for this half-term holiday. Not only would he have a nice long break from school, but also his mother, Paula, had hinted that she had a wonderful surprise for him. Now Benjamin was two days into his holiday, enjoying his favourite things like drawing, painting, playing cricket and watching television. Suddenly, there was a knock at the door. His holiday “surprise” had finally arrived.

It was his twin, Reuben. “Surprise! Benjamin! I’ve come to stay for the holiday”, he said jumping up and down on Benjamin’s bed, and breaking in his favourite colouring pencils. “I’ll be here until school starts, isn’t that great?” said Reuben. “Sure, just great”, answered Benjamin, annoyed with the situation. The next few days were a complete disaster.

After a messy dinner where Reuben managed to spill potatoes all over the floor and knock over a jug of milk, Benjamin decided to do some painting. He couldn’t find Reuben, so he spread out all his art supplies and painted a beautiful scene in peace. When he was almost finished, Reuben burst into the room with a bottle of fizzy drink. He tripped on the carpet, spilling the contents of the bottle all over the painting, totally ruining it.

Reuben wanted to follow Benjamin everywhere. If Benjamin tried to leave the house, his mum made him take his cousin with him. One time he thought he could escape for a cricket match, but Paula was expecting a friend, Mrs Banks, for tea. Mum had baked her famous apple crumble cake and she wanted Benjamin to stay to the visit. As usual, Reuben made a mess, embarrassing Benjamin. Benjamin never thought it could be possible to wish for a holiday to be over!

Ditt svar:
QUESTION 4/6

Read the text. Click on the name of the person who could be speaking.

Who could say: "People keep calling me clumsy"?

Benjamin had been eagerly waiting for this half-term holiday. Not only would he have a nice long break from school, but also his mother, Paula, had hinted that she had a wonderful surprise for him. Now Benjamin was two days into his holiday, enjoying his favourite things like drawing, painting, playing cricket and watching television. Suddenly there was a knock at the door. His holiday "surprise" had finally arrived.

It was his twin, Reuben. "Surprise, Benjamin! I’ve come to stay for the holiday," he said jumping up and down on Benjamin’s bed, and breaking his favourite colouring pencils. "I’ll be here until school starts. Isn’t that great?" said Reuben. "Sure. Just great," answered Benjamin, annoyed with the situation. The next few days were a complete disaster.

After a messy dinner where Reuben managed to spill potatoes all over the floor and knock over a jug of milk, Benjamin decided to do some painting. He couldn’t find Reuben, so he spread out all his art supplies and painted a beautiful scene in peace. When he was almost finished, Reuben burst into the room with a bottle of fizzy drink. He tripped on the carpet, spilling the contents of the bottle all over the painting, totally ruining it.

Reuben wanted to follow Benjamin everywhere. If Benjamin tried to leave the house, his mum made him take his cousin with him. One time he thought he could escape for a cricket match, but Paula was expecting a friend, Mrs Banks, for tea. Mum had baked her famous apple crumble cake and she wanted Benjamin to stay for the visit. As usual, Reuben made a mess, embarrassing Benjamin. Benjamin never thought it could be possible to wish for a holiday to be over!

Ditt svar:
QUESTION 6/9

Read the text. Click on the name of the person who could be speaking.

Who could say: “I can't believe I am missing a game for this”?

Benjamin had been eagerly waiting for this half-term holiday. Not only would he have a nice long break from school, but also his mother, Paula, had hinted that she had a wonderful surprise for him. Now Benjamin was two days into his holiday, enjoying his favourite things like drawing, painting, playing cricket and watching television. Suddenly, there was a knock at the door. His holiday “surprise” had finally arrived.

It was his pair of a cousin, Reuben. “Surprise, Benjamin! I've come to stay for the holiday,” he said jumping up and down on Benjamin's bed, and breaking his favourite colouring pencils. “I'll be here until school starts. Isn't that great!” said Reuben. “Sure. Just great!” answered Benjamin, annoyed with the situation. The next few days were a complete disaster.

After a messy dinner where Reuben managed to spill potatoes all over the floor and knock over a jug of milk, Benjamin decided to do some painting. He couldn't find Reuben, so he spread out all his art supplies and painted a beautiful scene in peace. When he was almost finished, Reuben burst into the room with a bottle of fizzy drink. He tipped on the carpet, spilling the contents of the bottle all over the painting, totally ruining it.

Reuben wanted to follow Benjamin everywhere. If Benjamin tried to leave the house, his mum made him take his cousin with him. One time he thought he could escape for a cricket match, but Paula was expecting a friend, Mrs Banks. For tea. Mum had baked her famous apple crumble cake and she wanted Benjamin to stay for the visit. As usual, Reuben made a mess, embarrassing Benjamin. Benjamin never thought it could be possible to wish for a holiday to be over!

Ditt svar:
QUESTION 6/8

Read the text. Click on the name of the person who could be speaking.

Who could say: “My friend often bakes my favourite cake when I visit”?

Benjamin had been eagerly waiting for the half-term holiday. Not only would he have a nice long break from school, but also his mother, Paula, had hinted that she had a wonderful surprise for him. Now Benjamin was two days into his holiday, enjoying his favourite things like drawing, painting, playing cricket and watching television. Suddenly, there was a knock at the door. His holiday “surprise” had finally arrived.

It was his pain of a cousin, Reuben. “Surprise, Benjamin! I’ve come to stay for the holiday”, he said jumping up and down on Benjamin’s bed, and breaking his favourite colouring pencils. “I’ll be here until school starts. Isn’t that great?” said Reuben. “Sure. Just great”, answered Benjamin, annoyed with the situation. The next few days were a complete disaster.

After a messy dinner where Reuben managed to spill potatoes all over the floor and knock over a jug of milk Benjamin decided to do some painting. He couldn’t find Reuben, so he spread out all his art supplies and painted a beautiful scene in peace. When he was almost finished, Reuben burst into the room with a bottle of fizzy drink. He tipped on the carpet, spilling the contents of the bottle all over the painting, totally ruining it.

Reuben wanted to follow Benjamin everywhere. If Benjamin tried to leave the house, his mum made him take his cousin with him. One time he thought he could escape for a cricket match, but Paula was expecting a friend, Mrs Banks, for tea. Mum had baked her famous apple crumble cake and she wanted Benjamin to stay for the visit. As usual, Reuben made a mess, embarrassing Benjamin. Benjamin never thought it could be possible to wish for a holiday to be over!

Dit svare:
Oppg. 38 nb. max skåre: 3

Complete the text using words from the table. Write one word in each gap.

I | for | me | more
---|-----|----|----
down | them | away | too

My mother came into my room while I was listening to music. I could see she was trying to say something to [ ] "I can't hear a word you are saying. Wait until I turn [ ] the stereo", I yelled. "That's my point", my mother said. "It's [ ] the way too loud!"
Myra is mad at her mother. Why does she always have to embarrass her? Like today when she came to pick Myra from school to drive her to football practice. While waiting for Myra, she got out of her car right in front of the school building. Guess what? She was wearing a big, stupid, orange half-it wasn't even cold, so couldn't she just dress normally?